George Beattie of North Main street was a week end visitor at the home of his parents in Haverhill, Mass.

Miss Elizabeth Coffey and Miss Margaret McGrath returned to the city Saturday after visiting friends in Burlington for a few days.

Atty. John N. Harvey and Mrs. Harvey and family, who have made their home in Maple Grove for the past two years, left to-day for Brattleboro, where the former has established himself in a law partnership.

C. J. Sherwood, a Salvation Army envoy, has arrived in the city from Pittsfield, Mass., to take charge of the Army work in Barre, succeeding Capt. J. J. Spargo, who has been transferred to Albany, N. Y. Envoy Sherwood is residing at 40 South Main street and his first service with the local brigade was held Saturday evening. The usual program of Sunday devotions was followed yesterday.

Police headquarters might well be turned into a recruiting station at this time, as no fewer than 10 volunteers for the army presented themselves at the chief's office yesterday and to-day to make inquiries concerning the location of the nearest recruiting stand. Those who were anxious to join the navy were directed to confer with Chief Master-at-Arms Mitchell, in charge of the navy branch at the capital, but others, those who wish to enter the army, were advised to communicate with some of the officers at Fort Ethan Allen.

First steps toward providing boys of the Headquarters company, Vermont National Guard, with some of the "extras" not furnished by the state or federal governments have been taken by purchasing books that will be of interest to the Barre men who volunteered and left for Fort Ethan Allen last week. An order has been placed for a dozen books bearing on the war and the commitment will be forwarded to Capt. C. N. Barber of the company as soon as it is received from the publisher. Among the books purchased are: "Mr. Britling Sees It Through," "Rhymes of a Red Cross Man," "The First Hundred Thousand," "Flying in France," "Kitcheners' Mob," and "A Hill Top on the Marne."

It is related of a German-born painter in this town that directions tersely given in a North Main street varnish shop Saturday evening resulted in his swift ejection from the place. Talk, as in most saloons and other rallying points these days, had drifted to war topics and of the painter it is said that he held his peace until undue stress was laid on his Teutonic connections. According to the version furnished by bystanders, the painter, in a wrathful moment, consigned the president of these United States to one of the circles graphically described by Dante in his "Inferno." No sooner had he uttered his message than willing hands none too gently hustled him to the door and tossed him into the street. Bruises were inflicted and the defenders of the president are said to have vented further disfavor over the uncomplimentary remark by carrying the war into the street. Mention of the dispute has been made to the police.

Apacue with the rising price of grains, teaming contractors in Barre have felt compelled to increase the price of team hire and hereafter $5 per day will be charged for double hitched employed on heavy work. For some time the price has been $4.50 and under the new schedule it is claimed that the profits are much smaller than the margins realized when a man could step into the open market and hire teaming done at $3.50 and $4 per day. It is understood that the revised schedule applies alike to private quarries and municipal employees of team labor.

Hebrews of Barre as well as orthodox believers throughout the world are in the midst of their annual Passover season and while the observance locally is confined to home ceremonies, in centers where there are rabbis and a synagogue much is made of the festival. Passover week began at sundown Friday, the 14th day of the month of Nissam, and continues until the 21st. It commemorates the deliverance of the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage and the saving of their first born from destruction. During the week no bread or anything that may contain leaven is eaten by the Hebrews, who substitute matzoth, or unleavened bread, until the Passover week is ended. Ancient customs and traditions claim strict adherence from the Jews in Passover.

News is received here of the death in Pinehurst, N. C., of Michael S. Robinson, a former resident of Barre, which occurred March 31. Mr. Robinson, at one time a member of the Barre Citizens' band and bass horn player as well as a performer on the bass violin in orchestra work, left the city five years ago, going first to New Bedford, Mass., and afterward to Fall River. At present his son, Frederick, is teaching penmanship in Cass college. The following newspaper account of the demise is given: "Michael S. Robinson, aged 46 years, died suddenly in Pinehurst, N. C., March 31. Mr. Robinson was standing in the billiard room of the hotel where he was stopping, when suddenly he dropped to the floor, and when assistance arrived he was dead. Mr. Robinson and family had resided at 420 South Main street, Fall River, during the past several summers, and spent the winters at Pinehurst. Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife and one son, Frederick. Funeral services were held in Fall River April 4.

American Pressure on Germany.

The German people, we are told, are not concerned at the prospect of the United States entering the war against them. Their interest is fixed on the submarines, Russia, and Prussian electoral reforms. Nevertheless a peevish Junker complains that Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg's promises to liberalize Germany's political organization is an attempt to conciliate the United States. The Reichstag has voted, 227 to 33, to create a commission to discuss constitutional reforms. In language of a boldness which earned Dr. Liebknecht a jail sentence, the Social Democrats in the Reichstag are now shaking the club of the Russian revolution at the head of the Kaiser and Junkerdom.

Austria exhibits similar symptoms. Count Czernin, the foreign minister, is once more hinting separate peace to Russia (in which Germany concurs) and both talk of a renewal of peace parleys with the allies. Ambassador Penfield departs for Washington on a mysterious errand which is suspected to have something to do with peace overtures. Openly, in the Bulgarian Parliament, Premier Radoslavoff intimates that the Russian revolution has paved the way to "a good understanding" with the Russian people.

Only a year ago the Germans talked of reforming the Prussian franchise system.

THE UNION DRY GOODS COMPANY

"after the war." Now they talk of reforming it during the war. External pressure is creating internal pressure exactly where it will do the most good—on the Junker class which led Germany into the war.

To this pressure the United States is adding weight, and will add greater weight. It is not yet a question of our pouring men into Europe; and if our preparations are determined enough, it may never be. Thorough military preparation and especially thorough industrial organization is a language German officialdom can understand.

Monarchy's only protection against democracy is to democratize itself. Besieged by democratic nations, will not the German people take the hint?—Boston Globe.
